Wedding Bells KILE — WORTHING

New Year's Day at Wainwright United Church was the scene of a pretty double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Glazier, when Myrtle Irene Worthing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Worthing of Wainwright, exchanged marriage vows with Carl Thomas Kile, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kile of Wainwright.

The bride chose a pale green suit with pink accessories for her wedding, with an orchid corsage completing her ensemble.

Violet Worthing, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, wearing a rust suit with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

The best man was Kenny Kile, brother of the groom, and John Kile and George Worthing acted as ushers.

The bride's mother was dressed in green velvet with accessories to match and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother chose a navy blue and white nylon dress with accessories to match and a corsage of pink carnations.

After the service a wedding reception was held at the groom's home where lunch was served to 30 guests. Later open house was held for friends of the newlyweds.

Glen-Coa Gleanings

Mrs. Arlene Steffensen has her holidays now, which she is spending at home.

Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Liknes of Port Arthur, Ont., spent last weekend with their family here.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Satre visited with their folks the first few days of this week. Neither Lawrence nor Curtis could stay very long because of their many pressing duties. They had both managed brief visits home after attending convocation at Saskatoon the previous week.

Illness still seems to be one of the major topics of conversation in our midst. This past week Mrs. G. Pedel had a bad dose of flu, also Mrs. H. Fuder, Mr. P. Nilson has been ill again too.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McBride (nee Lillian Lindquist) of Sedgewick have another little daughter, Marion Elizabeth Rose, born on January 8 at Kilam hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Einar Thomsen and family have returned lately from Denmark where they have spent the last few years. They are staying for the winter on the Hughes farm north of Killam.

A Fine Record

THERE IS PRIDE throughout Canada in the ability of Western farmers to win prizes for their grain and seed in national and international fairs. For many years prairie farmers have led those of other parts of the continent in growing wheat and other grain crops, and their most recent success was at the hay and grain show held in connection with Chicago's 53rd annual Livestock Exposition at the end of November. At that time, George S. Snow of Milk River, Alberta, won the title of barley king of North America and George Gwyll of Kelvington, Sask., was declared the reserve champion for the barley division.

Top Award For Hard Red Wheat

He was also named barley emperor of Canada. The wheat king is Spencer Duncan of Caro, Michigan, who is the fourth American to win the title since the hay and grain show was inaugurated in 1919. From 1929 to 1951 the title was taken by Canadians. Although it has been held for two years by Americans, Canadian farmers have carried off many of the top awards, and no doubt the time will come when the title of wheat king will again be brought back to Canada.

The Value Of Grain Fairs

The growing of wheat and other grains for exhibition purposes not only brings honors to the winners of the awards and to his country, but it stimulates interest among farmers in producing nearly perfect specimens of grain. The knowledge which is gained through the selection of seed, the care in cultivating it, the observation of weather conditions and many other considerations which go into the production of prize grain are of value in improving crops generally. There is stimulation and encouragement, too, for the farmer and his associates when high awards are won. Western farmers have shown leadership in the production of prize grains and have brought much honor to themselves and to Canada.

Makes Record Catch Of Geese To Band

On November 22, Jasper Wilson Miner, who has charge of banding Ducks and Geese at the Jack Miner Sanctuary, Kingsville, Ontario, made a record catch of Canada Geese when he caught 844. 251 had been banded in other years. 189 had been banded previously in the fall of 1952 and 1953. He said the campaign would continue until April.

Campaign Against Rabies To Continue

EDMONTON.—Dr. E. E. Ballantyne, provincial director of veterinary services, said that the campaign against rabies in Alberta will continue until April.

He said the campaign would not accomplish a great deal if it were discontinued after a week or month.

Trappers distributing poison pellets had been hired until the end of March.

Investigations have confirmed rabies in rabbits, lynx, foxes, wolves, coyotes and dogs.

WORLD CHAMPION CHICKEN PLUCKER

SITTINGBOURNE, Eng.—Fred Jenner, 31, champion chicken plucker in this Kent district, retained his title by plucking and trussing a chicken in nine minutes.

GOOD CROP FOR INDIANS

BLACKFOOT, Alta.—Indians on the Blackfoot reservation here had a good grain harvest in 1952. From 9,951 cultivated acres they took in 220,523 bushels of wheat.

WATER IS IMPORTANT

The average dairy cow will consume from 100 to 120 pounds of water daily. If this water is not supplied, milk production drops off because milk is approximately 87 per cent water.

ALL IN PENNIES

WINNIPEG.—Thieves who broke into the Elm Theatre here Christmas Eve had to work for their money. Police said $12 was stolen—all in pennies.

For Quick Cough Relief Mix This Syrup In Your Home

Thousands of Canadian housewives have turned to this well-known recipe for relieving coughs due to colds. It's easy to prepare, and costs you only times as much for your money.

Your usual drug counter can supply you with a 2½ ounce bottle of PINEX CONCENTRATE. Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and fill up with granulated sugar syrup, or honey or maple syrup. Take the syrup, stir well, add 2 cups of sugar with one cup of water... no cooking needed, and it takes but a minute. Now you will have an all-purpose, fast acting, effective cough syrup for the whole family, so pleasant tasting the children will like it.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

Dance To Remember

By DONALD GILCHRIST

"DON'T call me Barbara. It's Barbara. B-A-R-B-A—" she paused again—"A! Three syllables."

She tossed back her pigtail, rose up on one toe and did a slow, shy pique. She was a thin, pale child with dark eyes and a large mouth. Her face was not pretty, but it was full of expression and character. She pouted suddenly as she heard her mother's voice calling her from the house.

"That's Mum. I'll go to her."

"Coming! Coming! On dear, no peace for the wicked!"

The phrase came oddly from the child's lips. She had picked it up somewhere. She was always mimicking visitors who came to the house.

"Barbara? Oh, there you are!" A vivacious, dark-haired little woman was laying the table for lunch in the window of the front room where the pale December sunshine glinted on the floor. "Barbara, I wonder if you'd like to have some sweets. Choose a quarter of anything you like for yourself, but get the rest in peppermints. It's what Daddy likes, as you know."

"What do you mean?" asked Barbara curiously. "I think they're all yours."

Her mother smiled. "You'd better ask him," she said. "Now, hurry, because it's nearly lunch time. And do put a coat on darling; it's cold enough for snow."

It was not till lunch was over and the father sat down on the windowsill to smoke his pipe and watch the birds feeding on the frozen dawn, that Barbara skipped up to him and said, "Daddy, tell me why you always have peppermints? Must take a lot of them! Don't you like any other sorts of sweets? I think peppermints are dull."

Her father smiled and eased himself on the seat. His left leg stuck out in front of him, straight and rigid. It was artificial from the thigh downwards. He had been a "peasants' army" candidate four years after leaving school. He patted the seat beside him. "Come and sit down and I'll tell you. It's a most romantic story."

"Then I shan't believe it. All that Preston told me was all that I believed."

"Does she?" He pulled a wry face, adding without malice. "Miss Preston may have good reason for thinking so. All the same, I repeat my story: a romantic story. So now then . . . Once upon a time . . ."

"Once upon a time . . ." Barbara groaned interrupting again; "then it's not a true story. It's not real."

"Of course it's real! What a little sceptic you are! Every story's got to start once . . . something." Very

HIGH ENERGY TONIC

It was all too slow and mechanical—except the old-fashioned waltz. He liked that.

The speaker paused and shifted his position. He was leaning forward through the window at the pear tree against the wall, where a wren, like a darting mouse, was hunting in the rough bark.

"Go on," said Barbara. "What happens next? What is that the end?"

"No, it's not the end. He was just watching that wren. He's a great little dancer."

"Oh, don't bother about wrens," cried Barbara impatiently. "What happens next?"

"Well . . . I . . . I sighed. "The years passed, you know. He grew up. He grew into a man. But we can skip all that. We'll come upon him suddenly and surprise him. He's standing on a pavement, looking up at a tall, pale person. He's in hospital blue, and he knows very well he shouldn't be there at all. He shouldn't be out, because he's been very ill, and there's snow on the ground. But it seems to him that he's been dancing and dancing, and here at the theatre for a week is one of the finest ballet companies in the country. The titles in the repertoire are pure magic to him: Coppelia, Swan Lake, Aurora's Dream, The Castle of the Snow King, old favourites. Stretches of the music run sparkling and lilting through his head like wine. His only fear is that all the seats will have sold out and he won't be able to get in. So he treks off to the theatre, slowly, and perhaps to his death."

"And his fears are only too well-founded. Not a seat is left in the house. There are sold-out notices everywhere, and there's standing-room only for those who queue. Of course, he tells him there's a possibility of an old ticket being returned, if he cares to call in again."

"Well, he's standing there irredeemable and miserable, wondering what to do next, when into the booking-hall they come, five of them, as gay and vivacious-looking as a bunch of children.

"Locked out! Locked out! They are wailing hilariously. Locked out and nowhere to go!"

"One of the men goes up to the window in the box-office to explain."

"'We can't let in at the stage door,' he said. 'It's locked or jammed. So we've come round here. You think we could go and sit in the auditorium?'"

"Like we did once before," laughs a dark-haired girl very gaily. "You remember! We sat in the stalls in the old days, and I . . ."

"Who's got the sweets, by the way?" the young man demanded. "I know I gave somebody the money to get them." He sounds just like a big brother, laughing it over a hairy batch of sisters.

"Here they are!" cried the dark-haired girl, bringing out a white paper bag from under coat and holding it triumphantly aloft for everybody to see. "Anybody like one now?"

"She stands on the side, pivoting slowly round, — and that away the girls from one to the other, just as she's doing a gay, impromptu little dance.

"In the middle of it she suddenly seems to freeze. There's a man standing behind her, looking at her. He's looking at her, as if hypnotized, as if she's the very ground she treads on. She notices with a sharp stab of tenderness that just now he has only one arm, and that she's creased and hunched with the upward thrust of her crutches. And it's as if a sudden blessed impulse seizes hold of her, telling her what to do. She has only one arm, but she's one of them. Just as she's one of them, she runs across to where he is standing and holds out her bag. Her smile has something in it that her audience has never seen: something as gentle as a kiss. 'Do, please, have one,' she says shyly. 'Do you like them? They're peppermints!'"

There was a moment's silence on the seat in the window. A few flakes of snow had begun to float down out of the grey sky.

And then the little girl burst out:

"Oh, dear! Is that the end?"

"Yes."

"But it's a sad story! Daddy, it's sad! It's not romantic at all."

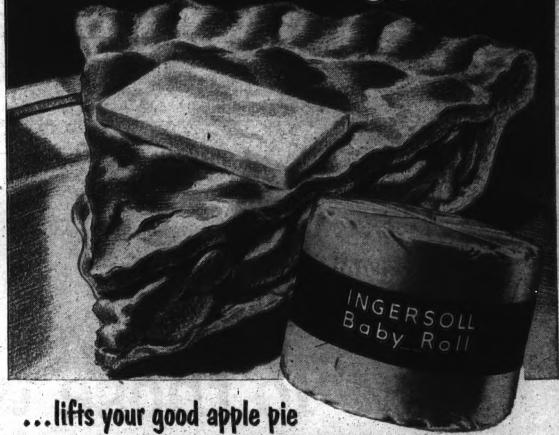

"Isn't it?" He looked away across the room, his eyes creased and twinkling with happiness. "You ask your mother: It was her peppermint!"

The Battle River W.I. Half Yearly Program will be printed in next week's issue.

Receive Letters From Far Away

It's always a lift to get the cards and letters from the folks far away who send a line to the Irma Times at Christmas. Mr. George Manners writes that he had a very fine Christmas indeed and he wants the many friends here and also the W.L. etc., to know how much he appreciated the letters, cards, parcels, etc.

Mrs. J. McLean of Stockton-on-Tees remembered us again and says an account of Margery's wedding is to follow. We are looking for that account and will write shortly.

Many thanks for your card and letter Mr. J. J. Kriekel of Koln, Louisiana. Will try to send a map and the required information this coming week.

Thanks for your card and note Mrs. R. D. Allen at Vancouver. Your many friends and the friends of Mrs. Parson send loving wishes to you both.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS about Cancer
QUESTION: Is cancer a disease of old people? ANSWER: While cancer occurs most frequently in the older age group, no age is free from it. It may occasionally occur in very small children.

Sewing Lessons

The Singer Sewing Machine Co. will be instructing a sewing class here at Irma early in February. For full details phone Mrs. Dredwick at 32. All calls must be in by January 19.

TESTING GERMINATION

Germination of seed grains will in general be satisfactory this year; still, farmers would be wise to make a home test. A booklet describing four different methods of germinating seeds on the farm will soon be in the hands of Searle Agents for distribution free to farmers.

It's good to go into debt... to yourself

It's the streamlined way to make financial progress. Some of our most successful customers use this system. It's the very heart of Personal Planning—the B of M's method of family-financing which Canadians from coast to coast are finding practical and stimulating.

It means putting yourself on your own pay-roll... making up your mind that you yourself have a claim on your income just as much as the landlord, the butcher and the tax-collector.

You'll do this, of course, because you have a definite objective—a strong reason for saving. It may be a general goal like family security... or it may be something specific like a new refrigerator, a house, or even a place in the country.

You can go into debt to yourself in two ways—by saving and by borrowing.

Saving comes first, of course... so much a pay-day owing to yourself.

A bank balance gives you personal confidence as few other things can. It gives you a good foundation for your financial plans... and it makes it easier for your B of M manager to lend you money when you want to realize an objective sooner than you otherwise could.

When you have a sound financial program, but need money for some useful purpose, borrowing at the B of M is just as sound as systematic saving. Indeed, it is another form of saving. And it is the B of M's business to lend you money, when it's good business for you to borrow.

A B of M Personal Loan simply enables you to enjoy sooner the things you plan for... and you pay it off in regular instalments just as you have built up your savings balance.

Why not make up your mind to get what you want this streamlined way—and open your special-purpose savings account at "MY BANK" tomorrow. And while you're in the Bank, have a chat with the Manager or Accountant. You will find them ready and interested to discuss your plans and problems.
